Why The Cottage Court Campaign?

Why work so hard to save the Cottage Court? It's certainly not the prettiest building in Town. As you look at it perched temporarily on a pad at the corner of Vine Street and Lake Avenue in Grand Lake, it looks drab and rickety.

Consider this. The Grand Lake Area Historical Society was born in 1973 specifically to save the Kauffman House hotel, the last Victorian lakeside hotel of an original six. The hotel was being used as a summer dormitory for some college kids. It had been rearranged, let go structurally, and was a grim shadow of its former self. But, it was the last of its kind. And it did reflect the Victorian era history of Grand Lake, a time so important to the beginning of this unique community, and our area's first wave of tourism by stage, wagon, and horseback.

By 1915, when Rocky Mountain National Park was born, tourism clearly was changing from the days of early visitors coming by stagecoach to stay two weeks at hotels. It was all about the automobile! People couldn't come to the Park by train, as there wasn't one. People were driving here. Amazing. Our beautiful mountain vistas were reachable by a day or two of travel for the average citizen! The Smith and Eslick families, like many in Grand Lake, recognized how important automobile tourism would become.

The Cottage Court offered "housing" for the visitor and his auto. It surely was simple... a small cast iron wood stove, a bed, a fold-down table and two chairs in each of four living units, and carports in between. It surely was also a great idea! The Grand Lake Area Historical Society will restore the structure, place it in a park setting like it once had, and interpret this next-most-important stage in our area history to our visitors and locals alike. Our grandkids need to understand how very important the automobile was, and still is to the soul of our country. And Grand Lake, of all places, has this oldest original condition artifact of its kind.

We will save it. And we will only be able to do it with your help. This is a very expensive undertaking, as was the restoration of the Kauffman House. Please help us. We might even name something after you! At the very least, you'll be mentioned as one of the folks who had the foresight to see how important preserving history is to the future, and how important it is to continue promoting the history of our area.
